Essential Functions for Graduate Students

Communication Sciences and Disorders, Missouri State University

(Please read, print, sign and return. Instructions for return are at the end of the document.)

The Essential Functions of Audiologists, Speech-Language Pathologists, and Educators of the Deaf and Hard of Hearing establish the expectations and requisite abilities considered necessary to meet the objectives of the program. Prior to applying and throughout the program, students should determine if they can meet the standards (with or without accommodation). Those who believe they do not possess, or may not be able to acquire the essential functions set forth, are encouraged to contact the department head of the CSD Department. The CSD Department values diversity and is committed to providing an equitable inclusive learning experience for all students. Any student who may require academic accommodations to fulfill the essential functions due to a disability is encouraged to contact the Disability Resource Center (http://www.missouristate.edu/disability/).

The following Essential Functions were developed with the American Speech-Language and Hearing Association clinical skill performance guidelines in mind and are also deemed necessary for successful practice as a teacher of the deaf and hard of hearing. Many of the essential functions are introduced and coached within CSD coursework and practicum.
