Motion (made at the March meeting) on use of merit ratings forwarded to the Faculty Senate by the FCC

Motion approved at the March meeting: We recommend that the Faculty Senate develop formulations on how merit ratings are carried forward to the time when there is funding for merit pay.

Margaret Weaver (Faculty Senate President) asked for clarification on what the FCC intended with the motion and what they would like to see happen. FCC members clarified that they wanted to be proactive, not wait and have something happen by default, and make sure something was decided about how merit ratings would be used.

Margaret responded: The compensation committee is working on this. They were considering several different options, such as, (1) the faculty member takes their best year, or (2) that an average merit scores is computed somehow. The compensation committee felt both were equally viable. They voted to bring the options forward to the faculty to vote on which they would prefer. Chris Craig (Associate Provost) went to President Nietzel. The President and the Board of Governors felt they could not support something that did not involve averaging. This information went back to the compensation committee, and no decision has yet been made on which options would go out to faculty or even if options would go out to faculty. The compensation committee is looking at if and where there will be some weighting.

Question: Will faculty need to do documentation for compensation if there is no money?

Answer: Yes, a merit system will go on, whether or not there is money for merit raises.

The dilemma is that the “best practices” document considered every alternative except what would happen if there is no money for merit, so that is why the compensation committee is at a standstill and trying to figure out what to do.

To do the voting, the compensation committee was going to set up a polling system on the Faculty Senate web site. The polling is to get faculty views, rather than approval. The committee would like input from faculty.

Question: What if a faculty member resigns or retires—would they be eligible for some of this averaging of merit in retrospect?

Answer: No one has thought of or dealt with this issue yet. It is a very good question. Margaret will bring this issue forward to the compensation committee.

Idea Proposed: Emmet Redd brought up the suggestion of obtaining historical data to inform the creation of a formula for merit. Information that would be valuable to consider is: What has been the average percentage pool for merit/raises? We could then normalize the formula to the historical average. Is that data—a 7 year average perhaps—easily found?

Response: Margaret reported that the compensation committee does not have that information. She will check with people who are collecting data for the compensation committee to try to find that information.
Another issue being considered is the issue of equity. Many want a definition of what equity is. Equity will include how many years someone has been in a particular rank, and a formula to calculate that in terms of merit will be used. The formula is complicated; it calculates number of years in rank and cross lists that with the CUPA for a faculty member’s area. This is a new matrix beyond what has been in place already.

Summary by Judith Martin & Emmett Redd: FCC would like there to be an open process, so faculty know what is happening. FCC’s main concern is that merit ratings be carried forward in some way and that we want to be proactive in this.

Response: We do know that none of the years will be thrown out. This year will be used in some way, but how averages will work and how much flexibility faculty will have to decide on those is not known yet.

Emmet Redd will type up a formula he is thinking about, and forward this to Margaret and Judith.

Question: Will faculty be having more input into the process (suggested by faculty polling)?

Answer: If the FCC has recommendations or ideas those should certainly be forwarded to the compensation committee; they definitely want faculty input.

We will put this on the FCC agenda for next year. We would like to have a report in the fall from Rebecca Woodard (Faculty Senate Chair Elect) on what is happening on these issues of merit ratings and how they will be used n the future.

Meeting adjourned at 4:05 pm.

Next meeting will be held on Tuesday, September 22, 2009, at 3:30 p.m. in PSU 315.

FCC meeting dates for 2009-2010: Sept. 22, Oct. 27, Nov. 24, Jan. 26, Feb. 23, Mar. 30 (in PSU 308), and April 27.

(All meetings are in PSU 315 unless otherwise noted.)
