Internship Opportunities in Religious Studies

Ambassadors for Children Internship

The intern's primary work would be with Ambassadors for Children, a service agency of the Council of Churches of the Ozarks and dedicated to supporting abused and neglected children and youth in our community. Each of our programs is designed to meet practical needs while also instilling a sense of value and dignity, which brings hope to children and families. Ambassadors for Children's programs are provided absolutely free to families. Our mission is to provide quality services and support to abused and neglected children in this area.

KSMU Radio Religion Beat Internship

The MSU Religious Studies Intern will work with the News Director and other KSMU staff and interns to pitch stories, research stories, interview individuals and write quality stories for written and/or broadcast delivery. These stories, roughly 2 minutes apiece, are the product of long form journalism involving interviews, accurate research and, at times, use of natural sound. The intern may have the opportunity to develop an area of the KSMU website dedicated to Religion in the News. The intern is encouraged to work with Religious Studies faculty, primarily Dr. Schmalzbauer, to determine potential news stories. Primary editing of these stories, both written and recorded work, will be performed by the News Director or other KSMU staff.

Missouri Health Care for All Internship

Missouri Health Care for All, a non-partisan, faith and community-based grassroots movement committed to securing access to affordable, high-quality health care for all Missourians is seeking interns to move our mission forward in the Springfield area.

This person will work closely with our Deputy Director at our Springfield office, based in National Avenue Christian Church (close to MSU). There will be the opportunity for regional and statewide travel as part of our legislative work and professional development.

Moral Injury Institute Internship

This internship will contribute to the growing base of knowledge and practice applications related to the mission of the Moral Injury Institute: concepts, resources, and practices that pertain to military veterans and others who struggle with the effects of trauma-related moral injury, including families and caregivers. This information will be made available through the Moral Injury Institute to community networks and organizations.

The intern will work closely with Dr. Tommy Goode, who has decades of community advocacy, organizing, and nonprofit work. We are looking for a flexible, detail-oriented, passionate, and personable candidate who is eager to learn and strengthen the work of development and implementation for the Moral Injury Institute.
